Adjournment With No New Taxes Seen For Ohio Assembly

Administration Leaders See Opposition To New Levies

RELIEF BECOMES LOCAL PROBLEM

Animosity Between Senate, House May Cause Some Trouble

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, April 17.—Development this week indicated strongly today that the Ohio legislature would adjourn early in May without levying new taxes.

Administration leaders frankly recognize a growing opposition in both the senate and house toward calling upon the taxpayers for more money.

The sentiment is so great that a leading administration spokesman, who has advocated a new tax for poor relief, said he believed the state government would let the cities and townships shoulder the relief problem alone, at least until the end of the year. Six million dollars in sales tax revenue have been set aside for relief in 1938.

Balanced Except for Relief
Gov. Martin L. Davey said today that "our budget will be balanced except for relief." He previously said an extra $10,000,000 would be needed for the repair of highways damaged by floods.

The governor said further that if the legislature makes no substantial cut in the $39,000,000 biennial appropriation bill, the state should end the biennium with a surplus of $4,000,000 or $5,000,000. He hopes to use much of this to improve welfare institutions.

A bloc in the senate opposed to new taxes appear to be powerful enough to forestall additional levies. Sentiment in the house was reflected when the taxation committee voted 14 to 5 to kill a bill to increase the liquid fuel tax a half cent to provide approximately $6,000,000 a year for relief.

Although the house passed an income tax bill, it went to an almost certain death in the senate. Many house members were reported on high authority to have voted for it only because they were convinced it would be killed in the senate.

Hope To Meet Debt
The no-new-taxes campaign is complicated by a deficit of $5,500,000 incurred by the foundation school program last year. Some legislators and school interests hope, however, that increased revenue from the sales and cigarette taxes, part of which goes to the schools, will be sufficient to pay the debt.

The failure of the house to go along with the senate's two relief bills created animosity between the two branches which may cause their leaders some trouble next week.

Governor Davey, asked if he would try to break the deadlock which caused the state's relief program to collapse without a substitute, replied "we will wait until the legislature returns Monday and see if there has been a change in sentiment."

Members of the general assembly trudged wearily homeward Friday after one of the stormiest and busiest weeks of the session in which they passed 45 bills.

Name Judges For Band Tournament

EAST LIVERPOOL, April 17.—Four directors of Ohio scholastic bands were today appointed judges of the second annual eastern Ohio high school band tournament, to be held here April 30. They are Don Morrison and Arthur Williams of Oberlin college; Wilbur Crist of Capital university, Columbus, and Ernest Manning of the East Cleveland high school.

Eighteen bands will compete for the right to enter the state contest at Columbus in 1938, no tournament being scheduled this year. These include East Liverpool, defending Ohio Valley titleholder and also co-champion of the state; Zanesville, Dover, Steubenville, Martins Ferry, Bellaire, St. Clairsville, Tiltonsville, Wellsview, Mingo, Shadyside, Toronto, Bridgeport, Adena, Smithfield, Dillonvale, Irondale and Brilliant.

RURAL POLICE HALT BANDITS

Fleeing New York Gunmen Are Captured In Small Town

(By Associated Press)
OMAHA, Neb., April 17.—Two New York bank robbery suspects captured by rural officers after a flight from Topeka, Kas., where they shot a federal agent in a gun battle, were spirited away from jail here today.

The gangsters, taken by surprise in a bloodless coup, were placed in two automobiles by federal agents and driven south, ostensibly to Topeka.

Surrender Without Resistance
Last night they lost their way in the cross-streets of a small Nebraska town and surrendered without resistance. Ten hours after the men identified as Robert Suhay, 26, and Alfred Powers, 45, shot their way out of the trap set by federal agents in the Topeka postoffice they were captives of Sheriff Homer Sylvester. During their flight they kidnapped a country physician and forced him to treat Suhay who was wounded.

The sheriff and his brother, Deputy Cass Sylvester, arrested them at Plattsmouth, Neb., a town of 3,700 population 25 miles south of here, without a shot being fired. Suhay and Powers found the winding streets of tiny Plattsmouth a maze. When they stopped to get their bearings on the town's outskirts the officers pounced on them.

H. B. Fletcher, federal agent in charge here, identified the men as those charged with conspiring with Raymond McNeely and others to rob the Katonah, N. Y., bank and with the $18,000 robbery of the bank last March 18.

McNeely was seized without resistance in New York yesterday by federal agents.

Wounded Federal Officer
Powers and Suhay seriously wounded Wynne W. Baker, 27, who was on his first major assignment as a federal officer. He was struck by four bullets. Another hit O. D. Davis, a bystander, in the foot.

The sheriff said the men had about $11,000 in their possession. Most of it, he said, was concealed in Powers' underwear.

The Sylvesters said they trailed the automobile bearing the two men eight miles. When it halted on the edge of Plattsmouth they called upon the two to surrender. The men stepped from the car, hands upraised. Sylvester took from each a loaded .38 calibre pistol.

The sheriff said both admitted having been in the gun battle, and having forced Dr. S. M. Hibbard to dress a gunshot wound in Suhay's left wrist at Sabetha, Kas. They took the doctor's car after their own had been wrecked against a bridge.

City Workers Will Get Checks Monday

Forced to wait temporarily, Salem city employees will receive their bi-monthly pay checks Monday, City Auditor Karl Webster promised today.

The workers should have been paid Thursday, but the auditor was forced to wait several days before making out the checks until the city's nine-month appropriation ordinance became effective legally.

Mayor George Harroff's refusal to sign the measure, because he felt city employees should receive a larger pay increase, after its passage by city council last week, kept the ordinance from becoming a law until the 10-day legal time limit had expired.

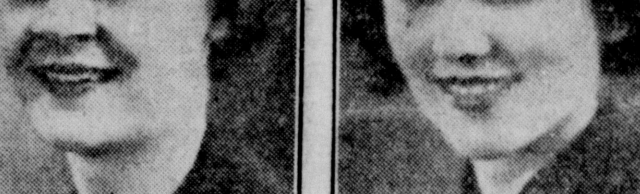

Council will meet again in regular session on Tuesday night in city hall's council chambers.

Open Post Office
LEBANON, April 17.—Plans were under way today for laying the cornerstone of the new postoffice at which Postmaster General James A. Farley will officiate April 29.

Honor Students, Speakers

Jean McCarthy

Jane Metzger

Robert Schwartz

Kenneth Shears

Returning to school Monday after a week's vacation, more than 2,600 Salem public school students will center their attentions on studies and events climaxing the 1936-37 school season.

Four Salem high school seniors pictured above, will next week select the titles for speeches which they will give as part of the commencement program at the high school Thursday, June 10.

The speech topics are to be chosen by the students with the aid of the faculty advisors.

The speakers were selected by a vote of the Senior class. Double honors come to the girls, Miss McCarthy and Miss Metzger, since they have been selected by school officials as the leading honor students of their class.

Among the concluding events at the high school will be the Junior-Senior prom on June 4, the Senior farewell party June 8 and the annual recognition day assembly in the high school auditorium, June 9.

The Seniors' baccalaureate service will be observed Sunday, June 6. The speaker is yet to be selected. Schools will close officially June 11.

Goshen Township High school students who placed in the Mahoning county academic elimination contests held last night in Canfield included Verna Weingart, first in French II; Theda Gosand, second in English XII; Helen Sanger, second in English I.

These students will be part of a group which will represent Mahoning county in the district competitions at Kent in May. Winners there will compete in state finals.

How Safe Is Your Auto?
Safety Lane Will Tell You
Seven-Stop Inspection Program, Endorsed by Police, To Be Launched Here Monday

Salem motorists will be given an opportunity next week to have brakes, headlights and other safety factors tested free in one of the most comprehensive 'safety' programs ever conducted in Salem.

A large section of the E. L. Grate Motor Co. garage at 721 South Ellisworth ave. will be transformed into a 'safety lane' which will be open to the public for 10 days, beginning at noon, Monday. The lane, however, will be open to inspection Sunday.

Seven Stops On Route
The motorist driving through the safety lane will be asked to stop at seven stations, each designated by a white line on the floor. At stop No. 1 a test card in duplicate, on which the name, address, make of car and license number will be written, will be given the motorist.

At stop No. 2, the parking, tail and stop lights of his car will be inspected to see if they burn properly. At stop No. 3, the headlights will be tested for focus and aim with the newest headlight tester. At stop No. 4, the horn, windshield wiper and rear view mirror will be inspected.

Usually only minor adjustments are necessary and every motorist will find it worth while to have (Continued on Page 8)

Juvenile Grangers Have Degree Work

Perry grange juvenile degree team presented degree work Friday evening at Willow Grove juvenile grange meeting.

The Perry team included: Master, Robert Lentz; overseer, Bruce Bricker; lecturer, Janet Whinnery; chaplain, Eleanor Hilliard; Pomona, Lillian Burford; Ceres, June Burford; steward, Julian Sunderman; gatekeeper, Cornell Sabatke; Flora, Joan Hinchcliff; lady assistant steward, Henrietta Hillard; assistant steward, Billy Hinchcliff; treasurer, William Sunderman; secretary, Wilda Bricker.

Mrs. E. R. Groves is matron and Mrs. Perry Hilliard, assistant matron of Perry grange. The same group of young people will present the degree work at a meeting of Pomona grange in May at Willow Grove hall.

PERKINS PLANS LABOR PARLEY

Industrial, Union Leaders Rally In Capital Tuesday

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 17.—Secretary Perkins counted 19 acceptance today from leaders of labor and industry for a conference Tuesday on problems of collective bargaining between employers and workers.

The latest to accept were Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio; C. M. Chester, chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, and John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Await Word From Green
Still to be heard from was President William Green of the American Federation of Labor. Office associates said they did not know whether he expected to attend.

The meeting is an outgrowth of supreme court validation of the Wagner act, which guarantees to workers the right of collective bargaining.

One official of the National Labor Relations Board, which administers the act, said the members "felt rather keenly" the fact that Miss Perkins had called such a conference without consulting the board.

The board, he said, always was willing to discuss with employers the methods of compliance with the Wagner act, and even had considered arranging a conference to thresh out collective bargaining problems.

Labor department officials said the conference was not called with any thought of infringing on the field of the labor board.

No Program Drafted
No definite agenda has been drafted.

Miss Perkins said the conference was called with the long range view of stabilizing industrial relations under the Wagner act by drawing on the experiences of labor leaders and industrialists who have handled wage and hour bargaining negotiations.

Willard and Averill Harriman, chairman of Union Pacific, will give the railroad representation at the conference.

DAMASCUS GIRL IS CHAMP COOK

DAMASCUS, April 17.—Pretty Dorothy Israel is Goshen Township High school's champion cook. At least, she should be able to claim this title for she's president of the Ohio Home Economics association of High School Students.

A junior, the smiling Miss Israel was chosen head of the state home economics organization at the recent convention held in Columbus. She will represent the state association at the national convention to be held in Kansas City in May. All expenses of her trip will be paid, and, consequently, Miss Israel considers herself a mighty lucky girl.

Not only is Miss Israel president of the state organization, but she also is secretary of the Goshen High Home Economics club and the first girl from this section of the state to get the trip to the national convention.

Accompanying her to Kansas City will be Miss Daisy Stackhouse, Goshen High instructor of home economics.

Leaps From Auto
DAYTON, April 17.—Mrs. Rosella Tierson, 45, of near Dayton, who leaped from a burning automobile, was in a Dayton hospital today, where physicians said she was suffering from a possible skull fracture. Sheriff's Deputy John Cahill said, Roy Tierson, her husband, her husband, extinguished the flames, caused by a short circuit. He was driving slowly when Mrs. Tierson jumped, Cahill said.

UNION LAUNCHES DRIVE ON FORD

Plans To File Charges With National Labor Board

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, April 17.—A drive to unionize employees of the Ford Motor company proceeded today and the United Automobile Workers of America said it would file charges against the independent producer with the National Labor Relations Board.

"We will have Henry Ford definitely on the run by Monday," said Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, at Oshawa, Ont., where he went in connection with the General Motors of Canada, Ltd., strike.

He did not discuss the nature of the proposed charges against the company, but at Detroit E. Hall, a union vice-president, said it was likely action would be taken in connection with the beating of two union members employed in the Ford plant at Kansas City this week.

Hall said he would proceed to Kansas City to investigate the violence.

The U. A. W. A. intensified its campaign to enroll Ford workers following the supreme court's upholding of the Wagner National Labor Relations Act, which provides that a labor organization having a majority of the workers shall be the collective bargaining agency.

"We have organized several thousand Ford workers already," declared Walter Reuther, president of the local whose area includes the main Ford plant in suburban Dearborn. "The West Side local already has a sufficient base in the Ford plant to ensure a permanent and lasting organization."

In an interview following the court decision, Ford said his employees were "free to join anything" but repeated his statement that it was "foolish" to join a union.

3 E. LIVERPOOL PERSONS KILLED

Traffic Crash Fatal To City Councilman, Wife and One Son

EAST LIVERPOOL, April 17.—Councilman William H. Skidmore, 58, his wife, Lena, 56, and their son, Eugene, 29, were instantly killed and another son, Claude, 23, and a friend, Robert Hall, all of East Liverpool seriously injured in a head-on auto-truck collision at West Springfield, Pa., Friday night.

The motorists were enroute to Buffalo, N. Y., to visit relatives when the tragedy occurred. The injured were removed to an Erie, Pa., hospital. The truck driver, who was unidentified, escaped uninjured.

Triple funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Martin funeral home here, with burial in the Columbiana County Memorial park.

The party was enroute to visit Mrs. Rulla Strasbaugh at Buffalo, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Skidmore. All five occupants of the machine were thrown out in the collision with the truck, a semi-trailer outfit. The exact location of the accident was 20 miles east of Erie, Pa.

Mr. Skidmore, Republican Second Ward councilman was serving his first term.

The conditions of Claude Skidmore and Mr. Hall were described as critical. The latter was an East Liverpool pottery worker.

Surviving are two other sons, Clyde and Walter, and two daughters, Mrs. Ira Capehart and Mrs. J. D. Cunningham, all of East Liverpool.

Better Than a Cat

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 17.—In 1885 a fall of slate broke Robert Bickershaft's back. He recovered but walked with canes. In 1913 he broke both legs. Physicians shook their heads. A few years later he fell from a barn on to a cow's horn, ripping a deep gash in his torso.

He died yesterday of natural causes, aged 89.

Walks to Cleveland

CLEVELAND, April 17.—Orlando Nelson Potter celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary yesterday by walking 32 miles from his Akron home to Cleveland. The walk was really made in two days, Potter starting the night before and staying overnight at Ghent.

Normal Ware Production Scheduled To Resume Monday

ACTION IS TAKEN DESPITE BALLOT

Brotherhood, Meanwhile, Analyzes 17-Month Agreement

The return of approximately 25 union warehousemen to their jobs at the Salem China Co. plant and hundreds of other workers to potteries in the East Liverpool district today brought a sudden end to the 10-day old walkout of more than 600 warehousemen and packers.

Capacity production is expected to be resumed here and at the other potteries Monday. The local workers returned yesterday.

Ballot Result Is Close
The walkout, termed an "outlaw strike" by the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, ended suddenly even after the strikers had voted, 148 to 142, against calling off the strike. The initial break came Thursday, when 12 warehousemen returned to their jobs at the Royal China Co., in Sebring.

The workers in the East Liverpool area, including Newell and Chester, W. Va., and Wellsview, left their jobs 10 days ago in what they called a "Holiday walkout," demanding an hourly wage of 83 cents.

The walkout caused the enforced idleness of more than 5,000 other union workers in the district and curtailed production at all plants. Operations also were reported back to normal at a Minerva pottery today.

Clay shop employees were instructed to return to their posts Monday. Meantime, decorating and kiln departments will resume operations.

Analyze Agreement
The executive board of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters was understood to be in session today, analyzing the recently signed 17-month agreement with the United States Pottery association, which provides wage increases ranging from nine to 15 per cent for 10,000 workers. This pact gave the warehousemen a 15 per cent boost to 67.27 cents an hour.

FRUIT GROWERS HOLD MEETING

COLUMBIANA, April 17.—Sponsored by the Columbiana County Horticultural society, the annual spring meeting of fruit growers was held Friday afternoon in the Columbiana municipal building with a fine attendance.

W. H. Matthews of Salem spoke on "My Observations of Citrus Growing in Florida." Prof. J. H. Gourley, horticultural expert of the Ohio Experiment station at Wooster, spoke on the subject, "Cultural Methods of Orchards in Sod."

Dr. H. C. Young, of the department of plant pathology, at Wooster, talked on "Sprays for Control of Scab." C. F. Agnew, president of the Mahoning County Horticultural society, discussed the proposed construction of a cold storage shed plant for both Columbiana and Mahoning counties on a site near Greenford.

Round table discussions on the various topics preceded the election of officers.

New officers are: President, L. J. Kirk, of Columbiana; vice president, Orin Cope, East Fairfield; secretary, Theodore L. P. Lewis, New Waterford, and the executive committee, P. C. Granger of Signal and Edward Esswein of New Waterford.

Mrs. Stewart Dies In St. Clairsville

Miss Jennie Carothers has received word of the death Thursday of Mrs. George K. Stewart, a former Salem resident, at her home in St. Clairsville.

Mrs. Stewart's husband was associated with the Bennett Drug company here at one time. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were members of the Presbyterian church here.

She leaves two sons, Knox of Coshocton and Sidney, a student at Ohio State university.

Funeral service will be held in St. Clairsville at 2 p. m. Monday. Burial will be there.

Excuse No Good

MARION, April 17.—John T. Jones, 24, was under sentence of one to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary today. A jury convicted him of auto theft after he failed to convince it that he and three companions merely sat in the auto when one, his sister, developed foot trouble. He could not explain satisfactorily why the car was not where the owner left it.

ONE BRIDGE AT A TIME

The country has been impressed deeply of late with the possibilities of another too-booming boom, which would be the forerunner of another period of depression. It has been listening seriously to everybody with anything to say on the subject.

A good many ears, therefore, will catch the words of Col. Leonard P. Ayres—and will note an important difference in tone. For Col. Ayres, with a distinguished record of business analysis to back him up, isn't worrying about a boom at all.

That is a bridge to be crossed when it is reached, he thinks. The country isn't even on the road leading to it yet. "We have not as yet definitely emerged from the depression . . . The far more important fact is that the production of . . . goods is now substantial."

Col. Ayres sees many things to do before it is time to start worrying about too much prosperity. His viewpoint suggests two things about conditions at present, though he does not speak of them:

First, that rising prices go with a business boom, but a business boom does not always go with rising prices. Second, that there may be persons in high places who wouldn't mind having the country think about a non-existent boom, instead of about recovery from the still existent depression.

"LITTLE ACTS"

Passage by the Wisconsin legislature of a labor disputes act and realization that the national labor relations act is effective only in cases where interstate commerce is a controlling factor are preparing the ground for a whole series of "little acts," like those which states enacted for NRA.

The state acts would be for the purpose of controlling cases in interstate commerce, which it will be necessary to do in order to satisfy requirements of management and organized labor for equitable conditions. The dividing line between interstate and intrastate commerce still must be drawn somewhere, and for purposes of collective bargaining the division of employers between those who are and are not in interstate commerce would be wholly impractical.

This is another sample of a method the New Deal has used with success in the social security setup, which caused states to enact laws supplementary to the national act. Though the intent of forcing enactment of state labor relations acts has not been declared, it is difficult to see how that result can be averted. The fact that both labor and employers operating in interstate commerce will favor such action for their protection seems to assure state imitations of the federal law.

CONFUSING

The attorney general's office has announced there will be no investigation of big league baseball, as requested by Rep. Cannon of Wisconsin, because baseball is not interstate commerce.

Coming right on top of the supreme court's decisions in the Wagner act cases, this is confusing. The raw material of big league baseball is composed of rookies, baseballs, bats and uniforms, gathered from many states. The product is entertainment, sold in various cities throughout the country.

The teams travel from state to state on lines of interstate communication. Sometimes, in the course of a single afternoon, their sluggers knock several waist-high pitches from home plate to a point somewhere into the next state. A large proportion of the players always are on the way to and from the bush leagues, which usually exist in remote places.

So if baseball isn't in interstate commerce, it's difficult to understand what interstate commerce is. But that, apparently, is going to be a common headache for the next few years.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, April 18

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of very important and exciting affairs. This commotion may be due to the launching of new projects or a new regime of a social, domestic or romantic nature, since all these matters are under high stimuli for change, enterprise and accomplishment.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very important and constructive year, with powerful influences at work in both business and private lives. New undertakings, fresh environs and powerful associations are imminent, with probably much commotion, change and excitement abounding.

A child born on this day probably will be an outstanding character, with unusual but constructive talents and tendencies. It may have many social graces and should be popular, although probably erratic, changeable and restive.

For Monday, April 19

Monday's astrological forecast is for doubts, difficulties and peculiar situations which might be hazardous unless met with a certain spirit of expediency, craft or collusion.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which certain tendencies toward subtlety, craft, strategy, intrigue or expediency may count for more than direct and open measures in circumventing treachery, fraud, distortion, malice and slander.

A child born on this day may be versatile, clever and shrewd, leaning toward the crafty, intriguing and subtle for its success. There is a possibility of these characteristics being indulged to its detriment unless given early training in integrity and honesty in its dealings.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, April 17—A letter to Dog Heaven: Dear Billy—I came across your badly chewed but favorite ball in a closet today and put it away quickly with a slight choke. It has been more than a year now since you went away and we miss you as much as ever.

I think it was largely because after great suffering you faced the Last Terror with such magnificent valor. A patient little sigh, a twitch of your nubby tail, and it was all over. For several nights I walked the streets trying to get hold of myself. I wanted you back then as I do now.

I'd meet Terrence, the cop, who used to tickle you behind the ear, John the Waldorf doorman, and others who knew you, and they'd inquire: "Where's Billy?" I'd have to shake my head and go rushing on. They looked at me strangely and then somehow they understood. They no longer ask but they miss you.

Your mistress packed most of your playthings, your harness, leashes, blankets and your water bowl "Pour le Chien" that we got at Rouen, and sent them to the homeless dogs at the Bide-a-Wee. You were never selfish and I'm sure you would approve that.

I have been thinking of that dreadful misty night we arrived in Paris and the pink cheeked page boy in the tambourine cap took you out for an airing, and despite the warning took off your leash—and in your bewilderment you bolted. When he returned white-faced, holding the empty harness, it was the nearest I ever came to fainting. Poor dear Billy lost in a fog in a strange city. For four frantic hours I searched and finally found you surrounded by a group of chattering, gesticulating Frenchmen at the City corner of the Place Vendôme. How you literally bounded into my arms with what seemed a human shriek of joy when you saw me and licked at my hands and face with your warm, wet tongue. Then you sank into a fit of exhaustion. All the rest of the night you did not move. I know for I could not sleep.

Because you were deaf and so dependent, I suppose, you entwined our hearts more than the average dog. And left such an enormous gap. Manlike in its feeble gropings is always, and for excellent reasons I firmly believe, puzzled by Death. You now know what some day all of us must learn. That is: What is on the other side? For if dogs haven't souls, neither has man, and the end is extinction. So I believe.

I like to imagine you romping through lush Elysian fields, jumping high like a rabbit, stopping now and then quizzically to look back and listen for familiar voices and footfalls. For certainly you will no longer be deaf in your Valhalla. Maybe all this is a foolish hope and maybe again it is not. What seems once miraculous often becomes quite simple. With a twiddle of the dial we fill our room with the music of a Berlin band. So who knows what greater wonders are wrought in the twinkling of an eye? I do not profess to know. I only know I believe and none of the cynics have yet been able to shake that belief the slightest.

You will recall Ben Ali Haggin's dog Nimble that Ben Ali so thoughtfully gave us during the last few months of your earthly stay. You growled at one another at first and once or twice forgot mutual manners and the fur flew. But in a short time you were trotting off together, tugging for the same sniffs of fascinating odors. Because you were old established we kept Nimble in the back at night, but after you left he came in to occupy your bed and indulge your privileges. Like you, he is a thorough and thoughtful gentleman. He, like you, has never misplaced our confidence although he's a terrible fraidy cat about being left alone.

For a time Nimble missed you, too, and when going out for an airing would suddenly stop, look back, and whimper. He did not understand. I cannot say Nimble has taken your place in my heart. No dog ever will. But he eased the ache. The cloud is that some day he, too, must go and again wrench our hearts. We do give our hearts to dogs to tear.

COLDS

FOR SEVERAL months everyone has been interested in the common cold. Few seem to escape this annoying affliction.

Dr. Copeland

Not "Simple" Ailment
Colds that occur in the middle of the winter are more severe, often causing loss of time from school and work.

A recent survey taken in the industrial field developed many interesting facts. Among other things, it proved that more than 50 per cent of time lost from work is caused by colds and their complications.

We cannot afford to laugh at this common ailment.

Unfortunately, since it is often considered a "simple" disease, it is improperly cared for or entirely disregarded. But, I am glad to say, the public is becoming more conscious of the seriousness of this ailment. This is well because it often causes severe relapses of chronic illnesses, such as rheumatic heart disease, asthma, diabetes and even Bright's disease. Repeated colds lead to chronic arthritis, neuritis and other forms of inflammation of the muscles, joints and nerves of the body. In addition, they lower the resistance of the body against other diseases.

Although the actual cause of the cold is not known, it is believed to be due to a germ. No doubt you wonder why medical science has not as yet discovered that germ. In time it will be located, but the germ is so small it cannot be seen with the most powerful microscope yet invented. For the present, the organism is classified as a "filterable virus," so small it will pass through the finest filter.

The offending agent sets up an inflammation in the back of the nose and throat. This may extend into the voice box and windpipe. The sufferer complains of a running nose, sneezing, sore throat, hoarseness and cough. There may be fever and headache. The symptoms may last from three to five days.

Unfortunately, the disease is rapidly spread from one person to another. For this reason it is a trouble of importance to the public health officials. All the authorities advise that one of the most important things to do to promote speedy recovery is to stay at home during the acute stages. This will prevent spread of the disease to others, too, and likewise protect the victim from coming in contact with other germs, which always add to the misery of the patient and increase the danger.

It is far wiser to follow these simple rules than to rely upon some

CHAPTER XXII

"Not at the beginning of our marriage, Gilbert, but very often recently, I've wanted to love you enough — enough — " Her words trailed off.

"You'll never love me at all, dear-est, while you cling to an episode in your life that's finished. When you admit it finished, you can go on."

She said to the stars to the darkness fragrant of jasmine: "How can one be sure of what's finished and what's not?"

Something snapped in the iron of his self-control. He said aloud: "I've sometimes considered my offense slightly admirable. More often I've realized it was extraordinary, at least. Now I think it's been insane. It hasn't helped you, and it's made me miserable."

Denise, will you be my wife from now until I sail in July?"

Her "Yes" was as uncertain a word as he had ever heard her speak; and he had heard her delightful low voice utter many uncertain words. But this time he swept past its hesitation.

He was halfway across the Atlantic, on his passage home alone in July, before he was willing to admit to himself that he had failed, that he had not been able to make her forget in his arms that she did not love him.

She had said good-by, under the eyes of her family (and Felicia's eyes derisive enough), affectionately enough. She had a kind of affection for him. She might miss him even. But desire him, or love him, she did not. She loved that man who'd treated her badly, and was treating Felicia badly too, apparently—else why wasn't he taking charge of a situation growing more impossible by the hour.

He thought, "I don't want an unwilling wife." Yet he did want Denise, and always would.

Only Felicia went to Southampton with Denise to see Gilbert on his way. And the first thing that Felicia said, when they left the dock, was: "I want Keith to come here. Denise. You must help me about it."

That was the first sentence that implied any intimacy exchanged between the two sisters in the fortnight since Mr. and Mrs. Rendale, with Felicia, landed in England.

Gilbert had taken for them all a house in Sussex . . . Sussex, because Denise happened to mention that her mother once said it was her favorite county in England. The house was high on the downs, with a view of a green plateau, sloping down to the edge of the chalk cliffs, and the sea beyond. By a precipitous descent, one climbed down to a small curving beach between two white cliffs for swimming. There were usually the sounds of sheep-bells in the distance, and always patient medicine. If fever persists and pain continues, medical attention must not be neglected. In every case, effort must be made to control the infection and improve the general health.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

The air was clear as light, cool as fresh water. Denise and Gilbert were settled there by the time her people arrived. She told him, more than once, "Mother and Father are sure to be happy here. It's such a lovely place." But whether she was happy there, or thought she would be, she did not say. She said very little to him nowadays of her thoughts or her emotions.

The days between her people's arrival and his sailing, Gilbert realized, were difficult for one who had no more talent for pretense than she. She was obliged to give an imitation of a radiantly happy young wife, and at the same time, of an affectionate sister.

Fortunately, her parents took the radiantly happy young wife completely for granted. Felicia, he could tell, had extreme doubts. But he hoped Felicia was sufficiently puzzled by Denise's attitude to herself, to have little leisure to speculate on precisely what lay behind her attitude to her husband.

Well, Denise was alternately aloof to him and apologetic for that aloofness, which was worse. She was solicitous about Felicia (who still looked fragile enough for the wind over the downs to blow away, and whose beauty was dimmed a little), but she punctuated that solicitude with moods of sharp, unreasonable antagonism, unreasonable because of the triviality of the occasions for which she expressed it. Felicia's least casual expression of opinion seemed sufficient.

In those days he had one long conversation with Michael Rendale and his wife. They had asked his advice about Felicia, as if he were really their son. And he grew fonder of his parents-in-law every hour he spent with them, but considered them a trifle too gentle to cope with modernity, did not know what to tell them.

The Dayne family were determined that Eustace divorce Felicia. He refused. Therefore they'd taken away the big salary which had always been given him for his entirely inconsequential work in the various family businesses. They were so bitter that they were even indiscreet, and stated with considerable publicity that not one penny more of their money would ever go to "that woman."

Eustace came to his parents-in-law and said two sentences: "If Felicia wants me back, next week or next month or ever, I'll come back." And he took his departure, to spend the summer with his friends near Santa Fe, the Rendales thought.

Keith Sheldie, Jr., as far as they knew, never communicated with Felicia at all. Nor did they question her about him, or about her feelings toward Eustace.

Sara Rendale told Gilbert: "She has been so ill, and still isn't strong. We haven't wished to trouble her. Besides, I doubt that we should have, in any case, if she wants to talk to us, she will."

Felicia clearly did not want to talk to anyone, about anything more serious than clothes, weather, the kind of crossing they'd had, the scenery of Sussex. Gilbert thought she lived in a kind of suspense, as if she were filling in time, while she waited for something.

He had an idea that she suffered in her thoughts. But for her suffering he had very little sympathy. His sympathy was entirely for her husband! Whom he meant to go see, without telling anyone, and to find work for too, in the Windon companies. Eustace Dayne was dull, perhaps, not sufficiently subtle to interest his wife; but he was worth ten of her!

Watchfully, Felicia's clear hazel eyes rested upon Gilbert, as if she guessed his estimate of her well enough. Those eyes were as beautiful as ever, though her young face was grown haggard. They moved sometimes from his to Denise. Always then, Denise went toward him made some small affectionate gesture or addressed him in a warm voice; but only, he knew, just so that Felicia should not guess anything.

There was a terrace outside the dining-room, overlooking a small very English garden, where they all sat having coffee after dinner. On the night before his sailing, they were sitting there when Felicia suggested she go to London, with him and Denise in the morning, and go to the boat later—"so that Denise won't have to come home alone."

Gilbert noticed that Felicia's parents looked approving. They believed she made the suggestion so that she could be with her sister, and comfort her for her natural loneliness after his boat sailed. He doubted that loneliness. He thought Denise would be relieved at his departure, and he didn't believe Felicia cared about being comforting, in any case. He wondered what she was waiting for!

As a matter of fact, she was waiting for his departure with a dreadful urgency rising in her while she kept her speech as light, her manner as nonchalant, as ever in her life. The urgency began the day in the hospital when they finally unwrapped the bandages from her face, and gave her a mirror. That happened also to be the first day on which her head injury caused her no pain at all, so that she could think without feeling that her thoughts were blurred with pain, and hysterical.

She had had the attention of the best facial surgeon in New York, called in by the physician who treated her skull injury. (And paid for by whom she did not know, except that her mother had said: "You mustn't worry. Everything's taken care of.") So she supposed it was Gilbert. The nurses' voices had been completely reassuring. "They do such wonderful things with burns nowadays. There won't be the slightest scar. You won't know anything ever happened to you."

There was no scar. What happened to her she did not know. The surgeons had done what might be considered a wonderful thing. They had removed three-quarters of the expression from her face.

A little temporary stiffness, naturally, everyone told her. The day was two months past. She could not notice the slightest improvement.

Her first definite thought, after some minutes when she was nearer to despair than ever in her life, was: "I wonder whether Keith will want to see me through. But he must, if not what else is there for me?"

She who did not have a manner of taking things seriously had taken her beauty with deadly seriousness at least, had considered it a woman's principal equipment for getting her own way; and the getting, one's own way was all-important.

She had a curious kind of realism. Though she had been "fond" of Eustace, and was still, though she regretted (and sometimes bitterly) what her recklessness had done to him, yet from the moment his family made plain their attitude, she was done with Eustace!

What would he or she do without any money? Certainly he was not specially equipped to earn any, in an era when even the cleverest people had difficulties. She could not think of anything he could earn money at, except perhaps starting a riding-school. Besides, he adored his people, those people with whom she had spent so many long, long holidays. He was being loyal to her. When he got over that, his people would even respect him for having been. Loyalty to one's wife was after all a "proper" emotion. Poor darling, he did try so.

Well, he'd be better off when she was gone. When everything was over, he'd face it, because he was not lacking in courage; only, he had loved her too much to have any sense of proportion in her presence about what had happened to them.

But being done with him was one thing, and facing the next year of her life alone was another. Keith had to see her through. "The New York in which they moved was a liberal city; if she married Keith, no one would care very much about the precise details of that Virginia weekend. But if she didn't—particularly because Eustace's family were powerful, and Eustace himself oddly popular—she would have a bad time as possible."

What she felt about him in anything but the necessary role of rescuer, she didn't know! She felt too ill and too worried about her face which seemed to her rather like a mask of what her face had been. And no one ever said anything about any change in her looks which proved more or less that the change was pretty serious.

Science Society Services Sunday

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the lesson-lesson which will be read at the morning service of the Christian Science Society tomorrow. The service is also broadcast over radio station WHK in Cleveland every second and fourth Sunday in the month.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, while on Wednesday the regular mid-week service will be held at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text for tomorrow is: "John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And straightway in the morning the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes and the whole council, and bound Jesus, and carried him away, and delivered him to Pilate. . . . And it was the third hour, and they crucified him" (Mark 15:1, 25).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The meek demonstration of good, the highest instructor and friend of man, met his earthly fate alone with God. . . . The priests and rabbis, before whom he had meekly walked, and those to whom he had given the highest proofs of divine power, mocked him on the cross, saying derisively, 'He saved others; himself he cannot save'" (p. 49).

Excuses rapped in Evangelist's Talk. Last night Evangelist Fleming May at the Lighthouse tabernacle spoke to a large audience on the subject, "Short Beds and Scanty Covering."

He brought out the thought that excuses made for not being a Christian are like scanty covers, they are not sufficient. He proved his point by mentioning common excuses and explaining how insufficient they are to excuse one before God.

Sunday school will convene at the tabernacle at 9:45 a. m. Sunday. A contest is on for the enlarging of the school during the campaign. Visitors are welcome.

The "Whole Bible Course" system of lessons is used.

The Evangelist has chosen for his subject for the 10:45 service following the Sunday school, "How May I Know the Will of God in My Life?" At 7:45 in the evening, he will speak on, "Where Are the Dead, Where Are Heaven and Hell, Will We Know Our Loved One in Eternity?" The revival continues, nightly throughout the coming week.

Emmanuel Lutheran Services Tomorrow Listed by Minister

Services tomorrow for the Emmanuel American Lutheran church, 291 South Broadway, were announced today by Rev. John Bauman, pastor. The services are as follows:

The Sunday school meets Sunday at 9 a. m. The pastor's Bible class meets at 9:15 a. m.

Divine worship services are conducted every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. This Sunday the pastor will preach on the subject "God's Children." The man who attempts to travel through life without divine guidance is making a fatal mistake.

No, only will he wander into all sorts of byways which are not connected with the real issues of life but some day he will arrive at the end of the road and find that his life has been completely mislived, that he has been occupied with temporal trivialities and has neglected the eternal essentials. We invite you to seek divine guidance in the sanctuary of God. Attend church services with regularly.

German service at 11 a. m. Announcements. Monday evening at 7:30, special meeting of members of the church council in the pastor's study.

Wednesday evening at 7:30, meeting of the Luther league in the social rooms of the church.

Thursday at 4 p. m., Junior choir rehearsal.

The Senior choir will have its practice at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Love to God and Man. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." To keep these two commandments, is the whole duty of man. The two feelings are very different. It is with an adoring complacency that we love the ever-blessed God, desiring that His glory should be advanced and that His will should be the mind of the universe. It is with an affectionate good-will that we love our fellow-creatures, desiring that they should be happy in loyalty to God. The one love is simply outgoing, the other ascends. The one is kindness, the other is full of worship. The one is filial devotion, the other is fraternal fondness.

Announcements. Monday evening, Boy Scout meeting.

The group meeting of the W. F. M. society will be held in East Palestine April 20. It will be an all-day session. Mrs. C. C. Amendt, who has just returned from Korea, will be one of the main speakers. It is hoped that a large delegation from this church will attend.

Carrie Barge will meet at the home of Mrs. L. A. Sharp, 441 W. School, Tuesday evening.

Circle 4, Mrs. E. F. Naragon, president, will meet with Mrs. Earl Day at 2:30 Wednesday.

Dr. Shaduck will be with us again on Wednesday to continue his Bible study. A good crowd is requested.

Choir practice promptly at 7:30 Thursday evening.

Science Society Services Sunday

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the lesson-lesson which will be read at the morning service of the Christian Science Society tomorrow. The service is also broadcast over radio station WHK in Cleveland every second and fourth Sunday in the month.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, while on Wednesday the regular mid-week service will be held at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text for tomorrow is: "John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And straightway in the morning the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes and the whole council, and bound Jesus, and carried him away, and delivered him to Pilate. . . . And it was the third hour, and they crucified him" (Mark 15:1, 25).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The meek demonstration of good, the highest instructor and friend of man, met his earthly fate alone with God. . . . The priests and rabbis, before whom he had meekly walked, and those to whom he had given the highest proofs of divine power, mocked him on the cross, saying derisively, 'He saved others; himself he cannot save'" (p. 49).

Excuses rapped in Evangelist's Talk. Last night Evangelist Fleming May at the Lighthouse tabernacle spoke to a large audience on the subject, "Short Beds and Scanty Covering."

He brought out the thought that excuses made for not being a Christian are like scanty covers, they are not sufficient. He proved his point by mentioning common excuses and explaining how insufficient they are to excuse one before God.

Sunday school will convene at the tabernacle at 9:45 a. m. Sunday. A contest is on for the enlarging of the school during the campaign. Visitors are welcome.

The "Whole Bible Course" system of lessons is used.

The Evangelist has chosen for his subject for the 10:45 service following the Sunday school, "How May I Know the Will of God in My Life?" At 7:45 in the evening, he will speak on, "Where Are the Dead, Where Are Heaven and Hell, Will We Know Our Loved One in Eternity?" The revival continues, nightly throughout the coming week.

St. John Services. Services for the St. John A. M. E. church tomorrow as announced by Rev. F. Dancy Barnes, pastor, are as follows: 9:30 a. m.—Sunday school. 10:30 a. m.—Morning prayer with sermon.

Major League Clubs All Tuned Up For 1937 Season Openers

Injury Jinx Strikes Only Sour Note for Opening by Keeping Stars From Games

Two Contests To Get 1937 Baseball Season Under Way Monday; Athletics Meet Senators; Bees Face Phillies; Seven Games On Tuesday

NEW YORK, April 17—From New York's champions to Philadelphia's last-placers, it looks like a banner year for big league baseball.

The injury jinx is striking the only sour note in opening day by keeping key men out of several lineups for the get-away program Monday and Tuesday.

Otherwise, those who direct, play and second-guess the national campaign will go down in the books among the top years, competitively, financially and from all other angles.

They feel that the diamond machinery will be in high gear from the time President Roosevelt gets the Athletics-Senators game under way in Washington Monday, and the Phillies and Bees go to work in a pair of Patriots' day contests in Boston, until the final out next September—and that the faithful will respond accordingly.

Some 250,000 fans will be on deck for the double opener, with a seven-game schedule Tuesday following Monday's curtailed program. The biggest crowd, a looked-for 50,000 or so, is expected at the New York Yankees' stadium, where the world champions entertain their perennial headaches, the Senators. Another good-sized gathering is almost certain for the renewal of the National league's hottest rivalry, the Giants and Dodgers, in Brooklyn.

Joe DiMaggio, key man of the Yanks, will be out for two weeks, recovering from a tonsilectomy. Tex Carleton, No. 1 Cub pitcher, will be lost for a month with a chipped right elbow bone. Jimmy Fox is in a hospital indefinitely, suffering from a sinus condition. Pitchers Tommy Bridges of the Tigers and "Lefty" Grove of the Red Sox are ailing, and "Stu" Martin, St. Louis Cardinals' infielder, hasn't completely recovered from his appendicitis operation. All are members of clubs figuring strongly in the pennant chase, and without them things may be changed completely for those outfits.

As matters now stand, the Yankees, featuring the same heavy-duty artillery that took both the American league and world series again in '36, look like a shoo-in for the pennant again—but certainly not by the 19% game margin of a year ago. The Tigers, with Mickey Cochrane and Hank Greenberg back on the firing line, and the Indians, with rookie Bob Feller, biggest freshman pitching sensation in years, a potential 15 or 20-game winner, furnish the top threats.

In the National league, the Cardinals are favored—but you can't make a lot of observers believe it. There appear too many "ifs" in St. Louis, particularly in a comparatively new infield and a pitching staff that was shot full of holes a year ago.

As a result, Bill Terry's Giants, defending the pennant, loom as strong as any, with a re-made infield no worse than the champion ship lineup of last year, a well-rounded pitching staff, and a slugging outfield. The Chicago Cubs and the Pittsburgh Pirates look from this corner like the teams Terry's troupe will have to beat to keep the flag.

Cincinnati's hustling Reds, young and full of fight, have a fine chance to crack the first division.

Victim of Thugs

CINCINNATI, April 17.—A victim of a robbery and slugging at Charleston, W. Va., a man registered as Floyd White, 34, of Huntington, W. Va., was in a hospital here today. William Lowe, a switchman said he found White in the Union terminal railroad yards. Lowe said White told him he had been robbed of $94 and slugged at Charleston and placed on the train, then fell off as the train neared the station. Physicians said he suffered a possible brain concussion.

Milwaukee Brewers on Top As American Association Gets '37 Season Under Way

Defending Champion Takes Measure of Highly Touted St. Paul Saints, 10-5; Minneapolis Stages Six-Run Rally To Win Opener

CHICAGO, April 7.—The Milwaukee Brewers may have been hard hit by winter deals, but don't sell them short this American Association season.

The Brewers, who won the 1936 title, cleaned up impressively in the playoffs and then took the "Little World Series" from the Buffalo Bisons, opened the American Association's 36th campaign with a flourish yesterday, defeating the highly touted St. Paul Saints 10 to 5.

Almost 9,000 chilled fans watched Al Milnar, Brewer southpaw, go the route, holding Gabby Street's men to nine hits. Milwaukee, which lost such stars as Rudy York and Chet Laabs to the Detroit Tigers, produced an attack good for 13 hits, one of them a homer by Otto Bluege. Vernon Washington hit two circuit smashes for the Saints.

Joe Morrissey, shortstop, led the St. Paul offense with three hits in five trips, while Bill Brenzel had the same average for the Brewers.

Minneapolis staged a six-run rally in the third to whip Kansas City in another inaugural tilt, 8 to 3, before 13,821 paid customers. Ralph Kress, former major league star, belted a long homer with two on in the Millers' big third frame which drove Lee Stine to the showers. Walter Tauscher allowed the Blues nine hits.

Heinie Schulte, Blues' second baseman, handled 13 chances flawlessly, and the Millers' young outfielder, Spence, singled on his first three trips to the plate and made a great catch of Schulte's short fly to end the game.

OUR YEARS OF EXPERIENCE HAVE PROVEN . . .

That many persons believe one thing about their eyes when just the opposite is true. Many believe their eyes to be normal when an examination proves them to be very abnormal.

Others believe they are losing their sight when they cannot read as well as they used to. They, too, sometimes are wrong.

You do not have to guess about these uncertainties when you submit to an eye examination.

Come in for a scientific eye examination and know the truth about your eyesight.

BOWLING RESULTS

Once again the championship race in the American Bowling league is all tied up with the Electric Furnace and the Federals laying claim to the first place position.

The Furnace team, which held sole possession of the lead for two weeks, had a chance to remain in first place last night, but won only two out of three games from Mullins Press Room and consequently went into a tie for the top spot with the Federals, who showed their best form in taking three games from Fernengel's Colts.

The Ohio Edison is in third place in the league standings, one game behind the Furnace and Federals.

Other American league matches at the Masonic temple alleys last night saw the Sanitary Shop win three games from the Firemen and the Masons take three from the Gas Company.

In a special match at the Grate Recreation alleys last night, the Washingtonville Odd Fellows team won over the Crescent Machine Shop team of Leetonia, 2:23 to 2:16.

them made and secure an O. K. certificate, as it will stand him in good stead in the event of an accident or other emergency in which the safety of the car is questioned.

Only Few Moments Required

Only a few moments are required to complete the test and the motorist has the satisfaction of knowing exactly the condition of his car.

This safety program is being conducted by E. L. Grate and has the official endorsement of Mayor George Harroff, Chief of Police Ralph Stoffer and other city officials. The response of the motoring public in over 100 cities throughout the nation where safety lanes have been conducted and the definite results these campaigns have accomplished in making car drivers more safety conscious led to the decision to conduct the safety lane here.

The newest type of scientifically accurate testing equipment will be available for use in the safety lane.

New Stock Issue

MIDDLETOWN, April 17.—Officials of the American Rolling Mill company prepared today to issue $80,000,000 in preferred stock which has been authorized by stockholders. Charles R. Hook, president of the company, said $45,000,000 of the proceeds would be used for retiring obligations, improving facilities and increasing the working capital.

He said the company earned more than $2,000,000 during the last quarter, which is equal to between 70 and 75 cents a share on the 2,245,192 shares outstanding at the end of 1936. Earnings for March were more than $1,000,000 he reported.

THEATER Attractions

Changing from the straight drama of their last few roles, Jean Harlow and Robert Young step into "Personal Property," a thoroughly delightful comedy from H. N. Harwood's stage success, "Man In Possession." The film shows at the State Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Harlow, in whom a decided flair for comedy was discovered in "Labeled Lady," plays the role of an impoverished American widow, supposed by members of the London society set with whom she associates, to be very wealthy. Reginald Owen is a member of a distinguished, but equally impoverished, English family. Owen and Miss Harlow are planning to be married, each believing the other to be an answer to a bill-collector's prayer.

Brother Arrives

Their nuptial plans are interrupted by Owen's dashing younger brother, Robert Young, just out of prison, where he was put for selling somebody else's car. Young gets a job as sheriff, assigned to watch Miss Harlow's house so that she can't decamp with her furniture and possessions, which have been attached by her creditors.

When he finds that her servants have all left, just before a dinner party she is giving for Owen and his family, Young offers to act as her butler.

After Young's antics at the dinner, Owen demands that Miss Harlow has acquired ideas about the young man and he stays.

Owen succeeds in braving Young to leave so that he can marry the widow. On the day of the wedding Owen learns his bride has no money and is relieved to think he has escaped. Miss Harlow and Young move out with the furniture in the collector's van.

"You Only Live Once," co-starring Sylvia Sydney and Henry Fonda, is the Wednesday and Thursday feature at the State.

Fernand Gravet, newest importation from France, justifies the expectations of his studio in his first American film, "The King and the Chorus Girl" with Joan Blondell, Edward Everett Horton, Kenny Baker and Luis Alberni at the State Friday and Saturday.

A preview of the week's billing at the Grand offers: James Dunn and Sally Eilers and Mischa Auer in "We Have Our Moments" and "Men In Exile," with Dick Purcell and June Travis, Sunday, Monday
